

Special meeting called on vo-tech controversy

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board has called a special meeting to discuss the controversy over who will fund the vocational-technical center at Stennis Industrial Airpark.

The meeting will be Monday night at 7 p.m. in the superintendent's boardroom at Bay Senior High School.

The controversy began last week when Pearl River Community College officials announced that although the center will not close, it has been discovered that state statutes prohibit community colleges from continuing to fund high school courses.

The statutes allow the college to continue operating secondary-level programs along with the college-level programs at the center, but someone else must fund them. One school district or several can be involved in the funding, according to statements PRCC President Ted Alexander made last week.

Operation of the center, which currently offers both high school and college programs, cost $202,000 this fiscal year, but according to Alexander a school district operating it for high school courses would pay only $109,000 due to differences in salaries, benefits and the fact that school districts get more state funds than community colleges.

No final decision has been made, but PRCC officials have asked the Hancock County School District to take over the center, which has operated and served high school students for about 16 years.

Bay-Waveland Superintendent Roger Oge said his district, which has 91 students enrolled at the vo-tech center, has not yet received any word from PRCC regarding the center.

"Our board has not taken an official stance on this yet. No proposal has been presented, either formally or informally, to our board by anyone," Oge said.

He said it is not likely that the board will take any official action Monday, other than a motion to seek more information.

The superintendent added that while he has discussed vocational-technical education with Randolph, he has not yet had an opportunity to discuss Pearl River's announcement.

However, Oge added, "All this talk of the center going to the Hancock District is premature. I see no reason it should go solely to the county. Bay St. Louis and Waveland residents have been paying taxes for the maintenance of the building for years."

Randolph, in a meeting with Alexander last Monday, has already said that the Hancock district is not ready to take on the financial burden.

"The whole thing is ill-timed," Oge stated. "We have our budgets prepared almost to the dollar...we're down to how many boxes of paper clips it takes to run a school district. We're in no shape to handle an adverse expense."

The school district must approve its budget next month because its fiscal year is July 1 through June 30.

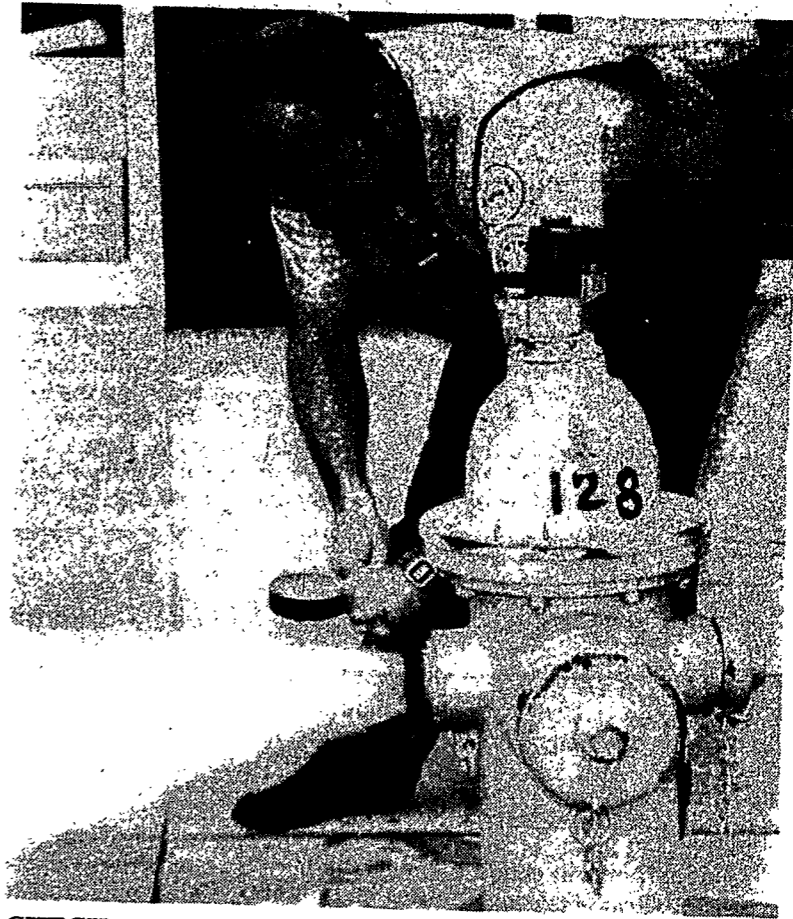

Oge called the meeting planned for Monday "an information-gathering session" and said either Alexander or a member of his staff, Willis Lott, is expected to be there to answer questions.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors was originally listed on the agenda, but Board President Ronald Cuevas stated that he had not been notified as of Friday afternoon and would not be able to attend anyway because he and his board members will be participating in a leadership conference at Long Beach.

The supervisors, at their meeting last week, heard from a group of people protesting the PRCC announcement but told them that it is a matter for the school districts to decide.

He said the supervisors have to go through the motions of "a rubber-stamp approval" of the county school district's budget each year but actually have no authority to levy the school taxes the protesters fear might be necessary if the center is turned over to one or both of the school districts.

Demos name Gottschalk

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee, which has been without a leader since last year when Hilda Bourg resigned to run for office, now has a new chairman.

Charles Gottschalk of Bay St. Louis was unanimously elected

Thursday night. Camille Lichtenstein was elected secretary, a post vacant since the previous secretary, Dorothy Sutton, moved out of the county.

Three board members remain to be appointed.

Gottschalk, who served eight years as election commissioner for Beat Five and is currently the chairman of the Bay St. Louis Election Commission, said choosing officers had become a particularly urgent matter because the committee must operate the April 4 Chancery Court primary.

The new chairman, who has lived in Bay St. Louis since 1951 and served as a pollworker prior to being elected commissioner, said, "We're in good shape on the election. The ballots are being printed and the letters to prospective pollworkers have gone out."

"Pollworker classes begin next Wednesday."

The party executive committees will not be involved in a Circuit Court judge election that will be conducted the same day as the Chancery Court primary. The Circuit Court election is a special election being conducted under a federal judge's orders.

"Nuisance gators" to die

BY D.C. HARVILL

Once on the verge of disappearing from the face of earth, with protection, the American alligator (Alligator mississippiensis) has rebounded in such numbers it now can be harvested in some areas.

As a result of the large number of alligators turning up in residential areas, Mississippi's three coastal counties now will have special agents to remove 'nuisance gators'.

There were more than 100 documented cases of problem gators in Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties last year, according to Mississippi Department of Conservation biologist Jim Lite.

"Our officers were out half the night catching alligators and would have to do shrimping enforcement work, too. We had to give them some relief," Lite said.

Nine or 10 agents have been contracted by the DOC to conduct the alligator removal, Lite said.

The agents will not be paid by the department, but will be allowed to sell the alligators' hide and meat.

Last year, an unskinned, wild alligator could be sold for about $50 per foot, Lite said.

He did not know the sale

The Community Task Force to educate parents and young people on pregnancy and parenting skills has been organized.

Janet Polozola, chairman, is the child birth educator at Hancock Medical Center. She said the organization was formed after, in teaching classes at the hospital, she found that a large number of pregnant women lack basic knowledge, which is a nationwide problem.

Polozola, Bay St. Louis-Waveland Superintendent of Education Roger Oge and several concerned community leaders met at Bay High in January to discuss ways to address the community's problems.

In further meetings, it was decided there is a need to educate expectant mothers during pregnancy and help them cope with newborns. This was addressed along with the addition of parenting skills for youngsters through age six.

Polozola said, "HMC addresses the education of parents with free classes for expectant parents and also educational films monthly."

The next free film showing will be on Thurs., Mar. 23, 7 p.m. in the Hancock Medical Center's cafeteria and features "The Miracle of Life," a film produced by NOVA.

Parents and ninth grade and above students are urged to attend, Polozola stated.

A "Pierre the Pelican" educational program approved by the American Medical Association has been adopted as a Hancock County United Way Project in connection with the task force's efforts.

The United Way's board of directors approved the initial funding for "Pierre the Pelican" on Tuesday in cooperation with the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, the task force and several doctors in the community.

The "Pierre the Pelican" program involves the free mailing of literature to a pregnant parent on a monthly basis and after birth until a child is one year old, and then quarterly until the child is six.

The information will include proper health care for child and mother through those years, as well as positive parenting skills.

RSVP is now in the process of compiling a list of names and addresses of pregnant women in the county in order to mail the information when the program's materials arrive. Interested parties can call Polozola at 467-9081 to be placed on this mailing list.

Information on the program will be placed at HMC, doctor's offices and several other outlets in the county.

The task force will be using newspapers, radio and television for public service announcements in reference to the educational materials available on proper parenting.

The task force is in the process of preparing recommendations for a curriculum to be offered to students in the area's schools.

Another matter discussed by the task force was the need for better recreational activities for the area's young people.

Michael Haas, Hancock County Youth Court judge, reported his office is now in the process of formulating a plan with Polozola for career counseling to help improve self-esteem and self-image.

With school spring breaks during the month of April, the group went on record at its last price for the reptiles flesh, which now is considered a delicacy.

The state is to receive $25 for each alligator the agents kill, Lite said.

The program will be conducted under strict supervision," he said.

To reduce the chance of agents generating nuisance alligator calls, each case will be assessed by an officer of the DOC.

In order for an alligator to be killed, authorization will have to be given by two officers, Lite said.

Also, the agents will be used on a rotating basis so no agent can anticipate when he will be called for a particular case.

A nuisance alligator primarily is one in a residential area where it constitutes a threat to human life, according to the biologist.

"We haven't placed a size limitation on the alligators the agents may kill, because even a small one can be hazardous under the right circumstances. We trust the agents to evaluate the situation and decide whether to kill the gator or relocate it," Lite said.

"A realistic estimate would be that maybe 30 alligators will be taken this year," he said.

As with many other species of wildlife, the alligator was nearly wiped out due to the whims of fashion.

Leather made from the giant lizard's rugged hide was so in demand, they were all but extinct throughout their range by the late 60's.

Realizing the alligator's value and ecologically beneficial role, the United States Department of Fish and Wildlife in 1967 granted them protection from hunting and poaching.

The alligator was given full protection from any disturbance in 1973 when congress passed the Endangered Species Act.

Under protection, populations have recovered so well, the reptiles have been removed from the Endangered List in many areas. In Louisiana and Florida they are subject to commercial harvest, regulated by seasons and issuance of permits.

According to Will McDearman, research section coordinator at the Mississippi Museum of Natural Science, the alligator population in the three coastal counties is considered stable and increasing. In 1988 they were removed from the state's endangered list.

Though they are no longer listed, because their hide looks like that of related species that are endangered, sale of alligator skins is strictly regulated.

"The agents will be able to sell the meat immediately in the state, but they cannot sell the hides until we get the permits," Lite said.

"It is under review by the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife. We might not get the permits until August. If that happens the agents will have to store the hides until then," Lite explained.

The removal program in the three coastal counties is patterned after similar operations in Florida and Louisiana, Lite said. But a season is not an option at this time.

Mississippi cannot support a season because, unlike Louisiana and Florida, it does not have extensive alligator habitat, Lite explained.

"We start getting alligator complaints about this time of year and we are ready to use the agents."

"The projects not going to be a cure all, not the first year; all the details haven't been worked out," Lite conceded.

Williams seeks Ward 4 seat

Tom Williams of Bay St. Louis has announced his candidacy for city councilman, District Four.

Williams, 36, is employed by Mason Chamberlain as a senior auto gage technician at John C. Stennis Space Center.

He is married to the former Debbie Mauffray of Bay St. Louis, daughter of Conrad L. Mauffray and Marie Parker Mauffray of Bay St. Louis.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Williams of Bay St. Louis, who have been residents of Bay St. Louis since 1981.

Williams maintains an active interest in the everyday practices of City Hall, and has been very instrumental in getting the council to enforce certain ordinances already on the books.

Williams states that he disagrees with the 100 percent pay raise the council awarded itself, and that the raise should have been much lower. "No one I know ever got a 100 percent pay raise. Some people are lucky to get a 3 to 5 percent pay raise. I feel so strongly about this, that when elected I pledge to create a special account with a percentage of the pay raise recently awarded to the Councilman Four position.

Funds from this account will be used to aid youth programs, senior citizen programs, and/or students from the Bay St. Louis School System in their first semester of college, towards tuition, books etc."

"The mayor-council form of government calls for a definite rapport and respect between both the mayor and the council," stated Williams, a fact which impels me to run for this position. When elected as your councilman, I will work hard within District Four to teach our city youth to 'Just Say No' to the evil elements of crime and drugs; I will enthusiastically cooperate with our mayor and fellow councilmen towards that end of making our city safe and healthy for everyone.

"It is my opinion that during the past four years, District Four has, in many instances come up on the short side of representation. We know we must protect the integrity of our residential sections in District Four; and, we know we want to provide employment for our youth through good, clean business.

"However, no councilman should come to the city's decision-making table with only his personal views, without first consulting his constituents who elected him to represent their views and beliefs on matters concerning their district."

Williams is actively involved in many Bay area civic organizations.

"I want to provide the leadership, good sound planning, positive thinking, and cooperation needed so that Bay St. Louis will continue to be the ideal place to raise my family and yours. I will be a strong representative for all the people of District Four—an good listener and a good leader."

Vo-tech needed for county high school students

There is a need for a continued vocational-technical center in Hancock County for high school students.

The facility located adjacent to Stennis International Airport in Hancock County has been under the guidance of Pearl River Community College, (Pearl River Junior College), for many years.

The college guided program at the Vo-Tech has filled a very important educational need for this county's high school students.

We all like to place emphasis on educational excellence, but not everyone is academically oriented.

We have always been under the impression that if something works well, there is no need to 'fix it'.

The county school system is now working under a very tight budget, especially with the construction of the new junior/senior high school underway.

The Pearl River Junior College board of trustees is scheduled to meet this week to decide what course of action it will pursue regarding the center's future.

We hope the board can find a way to continue the center's operation that will be within its legal requirements while taking into consideration the Hancock County School District's financial limitations.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

At 1:30 p.m. today there will be a ribbon cutting ceremony celebrating Bay St. Louis' $300,000 Street Improvement Project.

The event will take place at the Old Spanish Trail at Bouslog Street and light refreshment will follow the ribbon cutting.

As many of you know, there have been several key streets which were resurfaced during this improvement program.

Many motorists have made favorable comments on the extra width of the blacktopping on the Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis.

The small shower Wednesday helped the county's dry conditions in several areas.

The rainfall this year has been much below normal in several sections of the county and this makes wildfires a hazard.

Last Sunday over 1,000 acres of land were scarred by some 15 wildfires in the county.

The Forestry Commission's firefighters could not keep up with the fires as there were too many at one time to control.

Mississippi has some stiff penalties for persons who cause wildfires.

On Tuesday, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors approved a temporary ban on burning in the county.

A request for the ban was made by Jay Marsh, county fire marshal and Mark Jamieson, county forester.

Burning permits, which are required, are not being issued at this time, so we urge all citizens to make sure they wait until permits are issued again before burning trash.

History for the United States has been made many times at the space center in Hancock County.

History for the state and county, of course, has been made many more times.

On Monday, history was probably again made for Hancock County when an international agreement was made between the United States Naval Oceanographic Command and an official from the agency's Republic of Korea counterpart.

The agreement calls for the Naval Oceanographic Command to provide technical support and materials for surveys along the Asian's country's 2,400-nautical-mile coastline.

There are many good things happening at the Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

We hear constant complaints about out-of-state tags on cars and trucks.

The sheriff's department is addressing this problem by setting up roadblocks to check for proper vehicle tags and drivers' licenses.

We realize this is an inconvenience to those who have proper tags and licenses, but it is probably one of the few ways of checking for the violators.

Deputies will also be checking for proper lights; we still see a large number of vehicles with only one headlight at night.

In recent weeks, it appears there are more vehicles than ever running our highways and streets with only one headlight.

This is very dangerous, especially with the recent fog.

Hometown News from the Capitol City

By Mississippi Reporting Service

The state's three controversial charity hospitals are apparently dead, killed by a vote of the House Appropriations Committee.

Supporters of the institutions in Vicksburg, Laurel and Meridian, however, say they will keep fighting to revive them.

Sen. Gene Taylor voted with the majority to require that landlords make improvements on slum apartments, rural shacks and row houses.

The House passed equity funding of school districts across the state, with Rep. J. P. Compretta voting with the winners. The bill requires each school district to spend a minimum amount on each student.

The equity funding bill also establishes a $17 million state-funded grant to aid poorer districts in meeting the minimum standard. Lawmakers hope that a growing economy will let them fund the program without a tax increase next year.

District that are more than four miles below the state average in support of their schools would also have to increase local property taxes.

Residential children's homes will now have to tell the state Department of Health the names of their residents and next of kin or guardians. A provision in the House-passed bill to force the homes to reveal their disciplinary policies was deleted from the measure.

Three top appointed state officials were told they wouldn't get $5,000 raises less than a month after lawmakers voted against across-the-board pay hikes for 26,000 state employees. Denied were the Public Safety Commissioner, state Corrections Commissioner and state Supreme Court Clerk.

County supervisors should contribute a minimum of two mills toward the support of their local junior college, the House said. A bill to require them to chip in for the two year schools was initially defeated but brought back up and passed.

A provision to mandate a five percent minority set-aside in state contracts was softened by the Senate. Under the change, state agencies may give minority-owned firms five percent of their business but are not required to do so.

The state parole board will be a full-time body, the Senate decreed last week. The volunteer board had been overworked.

Much of the rest of the session will be involved with ironing differences between bills passed by the Senate and the House. Major issues such as government reorganization and equity funding are scheduled to be decided by legislative conference committee.

HOUSE

SB 2145. Reunites counties to levy a minimum of two mills to support their local junior colleges. It passed by a vote of 79 to 37 with 6 absent or not voting. Compretta, yes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PRC officials urged to consider human effects of closing Vo-tech center

To the Editor:

As a concerned instructor at Pearl River Community College/Hancock County Vo-Tech Center, I feel compelled to bring this important question to your immediate attention. Is the money issue presented by Dr. Alexander in his proposal for the high school vocational job training programs really worth it?

Both Dr. Alexander's proposal and Dr. Moody's letter are founded on the issue of the revenues and expenditures of the high school programs. Again this all boils down to money.

Is anyone going to consider the human effects of Dr. Alexander's proposal to stop funding the high school vocational programs in Hancock County? Maybe Dr. Alexander would have better served the needs of the students, faculty and the College if he would have had his staff include a study of the human effects of his proposal instead of limiting his survey to the single issue of money.

Some of these human effects are already becoming evident. As a result of Dr. Alexander's untimely proposal, the morale of the students and faculty has been severely affected. Many high school students are confused and disillusioned. A few of the at-risk students in the dropout prevention program have already quit school. Many first year students question why Dr. Alexander didn't first attempt to work out the arrangements with the school districts before announcing his proposal. Some of our second year students are now refusing our efforts to recruit them into Pearl River's College Vocational Program.

Our personnel, which have given many years to Pearl River College and includes award winning administration, faculty and staff, are being demeaned by a proposal which includes a projected pay-cut. This pay-cut brings them down to secondary level as a thank-you for their services.

This proposal has caused concern for Pearl River College's image here in Hancock County as evidenced by the 1,500 signatures on a petition supporting the Vo-Tech Center.

This petition was presented at a recent Hancock County Board of Supervisors meeting. At this time, the board of supervisors attempted in the absence of Dr. Alexander to address this public concern. The board of supervisors' president and attorney introduced information that questioned Pearl River College's legal position in the past and present funding of the secondary program.

With respect for the board of trustees and for the long history and tradition of Pearl River Community College, I do not wish to seem insolent or impertinent, but in consideration of the importance of this proposal I again ask, "Is the money really worth it?"

Yours truly,
Gaynell Roberts

Vo-tech nursing students urge continuation of center

To the Editor:

This letter is being written on behalf of the entire LPN education class at the Hancock County Center to Dr. Ted Alexander, president, PRCC.

Dear Dr. Alexander, As you are aware, our school year and entire program is from January, 1989 through December, 1989.

Because of this time period, we are acutely aware and concerned with the proposed change for the Hancock Center. Of course, the question uppermost in our minds, will we be able to finish our program?

The nursing education course is extremely important to each and every one of us—we have all made many personal and financial sacrifices to attend this program and most of us need outside income to help support our families.

If our program is discontinued at the end of this semester, we will not have another program to transfer into and our credits are nontransferable. We are about to pay $200 for uniforms which identify us as students of Hancock County Center—these of course would be useless to us at another school.

We beseech you to communicate with us as to whether or not our program is in jeopardy—if so, because of the reasons stated above, we feel we would be better off to leave the program now.

In closing, we wish to convey to you how vitally important the Hancock Center is to us, as it is to the many others who make use of the facility. Since our families are here, most of us would be seeking employment in Hancock County, so you see, the Hancock County community will lose as well.

Sincerely,
Valerie Moran
President

Public encouraged to attend Bay School Board meeting regarding PRCC Vo-Tech

Dear Editor:

I have been following with great interest the news articles in the Sea Coast Echo regarding the Hancock-Pearl River Vo-Tech facility.

I am especially interested in the availability of this program for the students of the Bay-Waveland system in view of the fact there is no program of this type currently in the Bay-Waveland curriculum.

This Monday evening, March 20 at 7 p.m. in the board meeting room of the superintendent's office a meeting is scheduled between the Bay St. Louis School Board and the Pearl River Vo-Tech officials.

Vo-tech education must continue for Hancock students

To the Editor:

In reference to recent articles in the Sea Coast Echo concerning the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center, I think it should be pointed out that Gaynell Roberts is addressing some of the concerns expressed by vocational educators, vocational students, parents and proponents of job training for high school students in Hancock County.

Being a co-worker and fellow educator, I echo the need for a continued high-quality, vocational facility being maintained in our county.

Presently, in addition to providing job skill training, the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center provides support programs for our special needs students to assist them in being successful in an academic as well as a work setting.

We as Hancock County citizens, taxpayers and parents must band together in our efforts to ensure that funding and services now provided be continued for our high school students.

When in doubt, talk about the weather.

That's advice I was given long ago by someone when I asked about making conversation with strangers. It was so long ago I don't even remember who that someone was.

Here on the Gulf Coast, weather seldom fits into the small talk category. It's usually the talk of the town.

Conversation topics vary, but when Spring arrives after an erratic winter, the weather always pops up when people talk.

It isn't triggered only by Spring, which down here consists of a few pleasant weeks before it heats up and turns so disgustingly humid that you find yourself wondering if you smell funny.

Our weather is great fun to talk about. Remember the snow flurries that cold morning about three weeks ago? And by the way, did you ever hear of a hurricane that wasn't a real conversation piece, whether it actually hit us or not?

Weather's not small talk here; it's news. I think of it this way: I can get a lot more front page copy from the weather than I can from some board meetings.

It replaces everything else in conversation, which I have categorized in the little filing cabinet in my brain. I find these categories most often:

—Gossip: Even though people teach their children that gossip is a sin, it's still so much fun to get with close friends and say scandalous things about mutual friends, enemies and people you've never even met.

—Built-in Argument: Some people like to talk about religion or politics because those things start arguments. It's amazing how many people can say something ignorant about somebody else's religion. Politics, on the other hand, is a religion with some people, particularly one card-carrying Republican I remember who was the only Republican I ever met who made less than $20,000 a year. Now that I think of it, she was the only Republican I ever saw who was poor enough to have to wear polyester. Do I sound like a Democrat?

—What my Kid Did: People who have kids will never run out of great conversation topics. I think it's fun to listen to folks trying to top each other with kid stories. Just remember that no matter how unbelievable these stories are, they are probably absolutely true, because kids do unbelievable things all the time. By the way, that sometimes extends to pets. Like yesterday, when my cat did...

—Health and Appearance: Looks, particularly wardrobe and hair, are a hot topic, especially with teenagers and women. Health is something everybody talks about, from the lady who gives you the family medical history if you say "How are you?" to the people who talk about dieting all the time.

—Work/School/Activities: The world's best topic is what you know most about, like your job, your class, your favorite baseball team...It's fun to compare with other people's favorite whatever.

—Complain, Complain, Complain: Baseball isn't the national sport; complaining is. That can include all of the other topics, especially the weather, and then some. People enjoy complaining about the economy, the president, relatives, bosses, the cat that knocks over the garbage can, the IRS, etc., etc.

—Brag, Brag, Brag: Now this one can include all of the things you complained about yesterday, plus your new car, new dress, old or new spouse...use your imagination.

There are lots of other things people talk about these days, and most of them are much more important than these topics. It's just that I hear these the most and they all kind of strike me as being superficial, except maybe when the weather becomes a potential danger.

What ever happened to the time when conversation was considered an art, not a recreational activity? We probably missed its exit because we were too busy talking about the weather.

TOM WILLIAMS

ANNOUNCES FOR BAY ST. LOUIS COUNCILMAN DISTRICT FOUR

Tom Williams of Bay St. Louis has announced his candidacy for city councilman, District Four. Williams, 36, is employed by Mason Chamberlain as a senior auto gage technician at John G. Stennis Space Center. He is also a notary in the state of Mississippi.

Williams is married to the former Debbie Mauffray, daughter of Conrad L. Mauffray and Marie Parker Mauffray of Bay St. Louis. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Williams of Bay St. Louis who have been residents of Bay St. Louis since 1971. Williams himself is a full-time resident of Bay St. Louis since 1980.

A graduate of Warren Easton High School, Williams attended Delgado Community College and the University of New Orleans, majoring in business administration and law. He has also taken courses in electronic engineering, pneumatic operations and other industrial engineering courses towards completion of a degree in electronic engineering technology in the fall.

"Even while attending college away from home," states Williams, "I shared my parents' love for Bay St. Louis and would come home anytime I could when there were no classes. My wife and children share the same feelings, and we are proud that Bay St. Louis is our home."

Williams, a past member of the Democratic Executive Committee for Hancock County, served as member-at-large for District Four. His constituents of District Four elected him first to the County Convention and then to the District Convention as an alternate delegate and to the State Convention as a delegate representing Hancock County. He has maintained an active involvement and interest in the everyday practices of City Hall, Bay St. Louis. He has attended City Council meetings, and has been very instrumental in getting the council to enforce certain ordinances already on the books, not only as a benefit to individual citizens with long-term unresolved problems in need of remedy, but also to benefit the overall beautification of the city.

Williams is actively involved in many Bay area civic organizations: Sons of the American Legion, Post 77; Unit Commissioner of Scouting—Hancock County/Cypress District, and SME chairman for Troop 207; Bay-Waveland Jaycees; Hancock County Historical Society; Hancock County Humane Society; Waveland Civic Association; St. Stanislaus Sidelines Club; secretary of the Gulf Coast Sportsman Club; past president and current member of the NSTL softball league; and past president and current member of the NSTL Mardi Gras krewe.

In presenting himself to the citizens of District Four as a candidate for councilman, Williams stated:

"It is important to me that every citizen of District Four be aware of my position on as many issues as possible which affect this district and ultimately our entire city."

Williams states that he disagrees with the 100 percent pay raise which the council awarded itself, but that he would not have objected had the council voted for a lower percentage increase in pay.

"No one I know ever gets a 100 percent pay raise. Some people are lucky to get a 3 to 5 percent pay raise. I feel so strongly about this that when elected I pledge to create a special account with a percentage of the pay raise recently awarded to the Councilman Four position. Funds from this account will be used to aid youth programs, senior citizen programs and/or students from the Bay St. Louis School System in their first semester of college, towards tuition, books, etc.

"The mayor-council form of government calls for a definite rapport and respect between both the mayor and the council, ever mindful of the actual opinions of the citizens of District Four," stated Williams, "a fact which impels me to run for this position. It is my opinion that during the past four years, District Four has in many instances come up on the short side of representation. We must now move forward.

"When elected as your councilman, I will work hard with District Four to teach our city youth to 'Just Say No' to the evil elements of crime and drugs; I will enthusiastically cooperate with our mayor and fellow councilmen towards that end of making our city safe and healthy for everyone.

"I'll work hard with you to promote a cleaner, more attractive District Four. We must also augment better recreational facilities for our citizens, especially for our youth. We must increase support for senior citizens programs and youth programs.

"I will strongly advocate the adoption of an educational assistance program for city employees. Such a program would be of great benefit both to this city and to the employees who represent it. We need to encourage job-related educational opportunities for our police and fire departments, to insure the safest and most advanced methods and procedures for their respective operations.

"We know we must protect the integrity of our residential sections in District Four, and we know we want to provide employment for our youth through good, clean business. However, no councilman should come to the city's decision-making table with only his personal views, without first consulting his constituents who elected him to represent their views and beliefs on matters concerning their district.

"When elected as your next city councilman of District Four, I will be a representative for the people of District Four. I, as your city councilman for District Four, will be there for the people of District Four, for their fair share of monies for needed improvements throughout District Four. I will meet with the people of District Four to discuss their needs and concerns and work towards solutions of those needs and concerns.

"I want to provide the leadership, good sound planning, positive thinking and cooperation needed so that Bay St. Louis will continue to be the ideal place to raise my family and yours. I will be a strong representative for all the people of District Four—a good listener and a good leader."

Breland to chair Bike-A-Thon

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital announced that Clark Breland of the Bay-Waveland Jaycees will coordinate the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels For Life" Bike-A-Thon in Bay St. Louis on April 8.

Founded by Danny Thomas in 1962, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is the largest childhood cancer research-treatment-education center in America. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, interracial and provides medical care for over 3,200 active patients.

Currently, more than $183,000 is needed each day to keep the doors open. These funds come primarily from public contributions.

The Bike-A-Thon program this year is dedicated to Brian McCollister. Brian, a native of Louisiana, was diagnosed with leukemia in October, 1984. For the next two and a half years he underwent daily chemotherapy.

Today Brian is in remission and visits St. Jude Hospital for routine check-ups. Brian is a living example of the progress and success of the research, patient care, and education programs of this internationally recognized hospital.

Community joins NASA in education program

NASA aerospace education specialists are already on the agenda to give lectures and demonstrations to students in more than 100 Gulf Coast schools, a dozen civic and business organizations and eight teacher programs during the upcoming NASA Community Involvement Program slated for April 16 through May 5.

A number of events are being planned by community leaders and educators to promote science and math education in all of the Coast's 139 schools. The community program, entitled "Coast Encounters: A Space Age Adventure in Science Literacy for the Mississippi Gulf Coast," was announced by Mississippi's First Lady Julie Mabius at a Biloxi press conference last month. Mabius said the idea is to "blitz" the entire Gulf Coast—Hancock, Harrison, Jackson and Pearl River counties—to increase student and community awareness of the need for science and math literacy.

NASA community involvement programs focus the national resources of the entire space agency on a particular community which has expressed a desire for such an educational thrust.

During the community involvement program, NASA specialists from headquarters and other centers will bring their knowledge and expertise to the classroom and community through a variety of methods. Some will use spacecraft models, flight hardware and science demonstration equipment. Others will incorporate laser disc video into their presentations, but all will give their audiences the latest information and NASA aeronautics research, manned spaceflight and astronomy and planetary science.

Mississippi's coastwide program has received the support of the governor's office, state superintendent of education, Gulf Coast Economic Development Council, NASA headquarters, John C. Stennis Space Center, school systems in the four coast counties and numerous community leaders and businessmen.

Plans are to kick off the effort at 2 p.m. April 16 with a ribbon-cutting at Edgewater Mall in Biloxi to unveil the state's largest-ever NASA exhibit. At that time, the winners of the school poster contest will be announced.

Major activities are planned for the entire three weeks. Among them will be one of the largest aircraft flyovers ever to be held in the state. The flyover is set for April 29 beginning at 2 p.m. along the coastline from Bay St. Louis to Pascagoula.

A NASA aeronautics exhibit van from Langley Research Center in Virginia will be set up for public viewing at Edgewater Mall April 29, Singing River Mall in Gautier April 30 and Pearl River Community College in Poplarville May 1. A sand sculpture contest is planned for April 29 on the beach in front of Edgewater.

Public symposia are scheduled April 18 at the Crosby Memorial Public Library, April 25 at Jackson County Community College in Gautier and April 27 at Jefferson Davis Community College in Gulfport.

Other activities will include a math and science quiz bowl with competition finals to be aired on local television; a Federal Women's Program Career Day at Stennis Space Center on April 26 and an open house at Stennis to run through the entire community involvement program. Also, a moon rock exhibit will be displayed in various locations throughout the four-county region.

Rosato to perform

Joseph R. "Rosie" Rosato and his musical group, Nu Clear Rhythms, will perform today at the Audubon Park Zoo Crunch Tators Jazz Search '89.

They were among 30 semi-finalists chosen from more than 100 entries based on original songs. They appear at 3:50 p.m. at the Hibernia Pavilion in the jazz/rhythm and blues category.

Rosato is the son of Gloria Rosato and the late Santo Rosato. He spent most of his life in Bay St. Louis, where he received his education. He also attended Pearl River Junior College, Southeastern Louisiana University and Delgado College.

Rosato is in the process of releasing a tape of eight original selections recorded at Rabadash Recording Services in New Orleans.

He was accompanied by George Porter Jr. on bass and vocals, David Baptiste on drums, David Brown and Brent Moreland on guitars and Kufaru Mouton on percussion.

The studio tape was mastered by Jim Loyd of Masterfonics in Nashville, Tenn., and Hayden Productions served as executive producer for the project. Release of the tape for sale is expected within the next month.

Anderson Museum

Local fundraising drive to finance
Walter Anderson Museum of Art begins

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Several Coast residents have joined forces to find "A Home For The Islander"—that is, a permanent home for the works of renowned American artist Walter Anderson.

A 7000-square foot museum in Ocean Springs has been planned by Friends of Walter Anderson Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving and celebrating the artist's works.

Volunteers met Friday at the

"This is not only an Ocean Springs project," stressed Shellnut. "We want to preserve these works of art for everyone, and keep them in the state, as other museums have expressed interest in housing the (Anderson) collection."

"It will be a boost for the Coast economy as a tourist attraction, as well as an educational facility for the children of our community," she said.

In addition to the Anderson works, the museum will house works. Temporary traveling exhibits will also be housed.

A library, reference center and archives for scholarly and educational research will be constructed, as well as facilities for art classes and workshops, lectures, slide talks, films and tours.

The education aspect remains a vital part of the museum plan. In Anderson's own words, "A museum without the grace of teaching is a place of death." The proposed struc-

Richards, Marilyn Saccocia and Shellnut.

A "Thank You" party has been planned for those donating more than $1000, hosted at the Royal D'Iberville in Biloxi on April 18. Entertainment, dinner and fabulous door prizes will be provided, according to Shellnut.

Persons not contacted, but wishing to donate, may call the Friends of Walter Anderson office, 872-3164, or Shellnut, 452-4714.

BOARD OF TRUSTEE Members Elizabeth Murphy and Sandra Shellnut

Pass Christian Yacht Club to organize local fundraising strategy.

Sandra Shellnut of Pass Christian, a member of the FWA Board of Trustees, and Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr. are co-chairman of fundraising efforts in the Bay St. Louis-Diamondhead-Pass Christian area.

Approximately $500,000 has already been raised statewide toward a goal of $750,000 needed to begin construction of the museum. Completion of the structure will cost an estimated $1,050,000, with the difference being reconciled by foundation grants, building the museum in phases, constructing a smaller museum or exceeding the fundraising goal.

WPA murals done in 1935 on the walls of the old Ocean Springs High School auditorium; murals depicting the history of Ocean Springs found on the Community Center walls and "Creation of Sunrise" murals, a personal reflection found on the ceiling and walls of a tiny room of Anderson's cottage.

A facility will display the related works of the Anderson-Shearwater family and another will feature local and regional ture will be very much a place of life.

Tax deductible donations will be solicited by volunteers in each area. Assisting in the fund drive are Bay St. Louis residents Frankiewicz, Ellen Kane and Marilyn Mestayer; Diamondhead residents Betty Claggett and Sue Stout; Wave-land resident Nancy Gex; and Pass Christian residents Jean Hammett, Margaret Morse, Elizabeth Murphy, Betsy

Volunteer 'grandpas' encourage acceptance, affection, achievement among Hancock pre-schoolers

By BROTHER CANISIUS

'Project Grandpa,' a program for retired senior citizens, has been active in our community since September.

The 27 men enrolled in the program visit the Child Development Center, Headstart and the Methodist Children's Center each week to act as 'grandpas' to the little children and to assist the instructors there in developing the learning skills of their charges.

The benefits are many to both the children and to the 27 volunteers in the project.

In all ages of life people need the three basic A's—Acceptance, Affection and Achievement.

The grandpas feel honored that the three institutions allow them to work with the children. The children show their acceptance and affection by the exciting welcome they give the grandpas when they arrive and by the hugs and kisses they give them when they leave.

The third A—Achievement—is very rewarding to the children and to the volunteers. Over the weeks the grandpas have seen the little boys and girls develop their learning skills with some help from them.

But most importantly, by their love and kindness the grandpas have instilled in their little friends that each of them is a special child of God. Hopefully, this feeling of self-worth will grow stronger as the years go by.

There are many light moments during these weekly visits. One such incident happened while one of the grandpas was helping a little boy with his numbers. The little fellow looked up from his paper to ask the grandpa, "How many are you?"

While the grandpa was puzzling over the question, the little boy raised four fingers and exclaimed, "I'm four."

At another center, the teacher decided to challenge the class to remember a different number given to each of them and to the grandpa.

The latter jokingly remarked that he was an old grandpa and might not be able to remember his number. Help came from a four-year-old girl who was much wiser than her years, when she shouted out, "Write it down!"

'Project Grandpa' is not affiliated with any church, school or organization. Anyone interested in joining can do so by reporting to any of the three places we visit:

Tuesday, Child Development Center

Wednesday, Methodist Children's Center and Thursdays, Headstart. Our visits last from 9 until 10 a.m.

Jesus was out there

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Anytime you run the highways late at night, you are rolling the dice, because the hazards are even more numerous than the daytime ones: tire-threatening trash, stalled cars or trucks, poor visibility, dogs, deer and other animals.

This time I felt relatively secure, because I had completed all but about 80 miles of a 900-mile trip. Suddenly, a medium-sized dog trotted from the median at my left and began crossing directly in front of me. Had he kept running, he might have made it. But he wheeled and looked into the lights.

At freeway cruising speed, there is nothing sensible to do but plow into such an obstacle. The sickening thump told me that the poor creature never felt a thing, and simply rolled under and away.

Since there was no vibration after the collision, I ran the car to the next exit, pulled off and assessed the damage. A very leaky radiator greeted my eyes.

After extensive examination and maneuvering at a truck stop, including a half-mile jog at 3 a.m. to pick up some "Alumaseal" to stop the radiator leak, I got back on the interstate and continued the last leg of the trip.

Within four miles, the car vibrated violently, then slowed considerably until the engine killed. There was nothing to do but coast from the road and pull to the far side of the shoulder. Wheat does one do in a disabled car on a lonely stretch of road at 3:30 a.m.? Turn on the trouble lights, for one thing. Then pull out your flashlight, stand behind the car and use your thumb.

I had left icy weather behind me, but the air was sufficiently biting out there to be uncomfortable. It was a forlorn feeling at that time of the morning to know how slim the odds were that anyone would dare stop to see what my problem was.

To my pleasant surprise, the lights of an approaching car veered from the highway and approached me slowly on the shoulder. A small red light began blinking on the dashboard.

I was dumbfounded to observe that this was the same unmarked car which had just passed me and which I had guessed was a police car. With eager steps I swung around to the driver's side of the car.

"Can I help you?" the patrolman asked.

"I think that my car is low on oil," Officer, and I began to recount the dog incident to him. "The red panel light reads 'oil'."

A quick trip with the patrolman to get oil did not rescue the car, for it soon stopped again. This time, the officer called a wrecker. All the while, we became acquainted and exchanged a bit of our histories. To say the least, he was most accommodating.

After taking two phone numbers which he would call about 6:30 a.m., Officer Lou Pingno left me in the hands of Jake Vaccaro and his wrecker.

About a half hour later, as we pulled into the wrecker yard, I told Jake that I had a blanket and would have no trouble sleeping in the car until my ride came.

"You will not sleep in the car! You're going to sleep in my house!" came the response which was more of a command. "My little daughter has gone to her room with her friend. You can sleep in the sleeper in the living room."

Overwhelmed, I was more than grateful at 5:40 a.m. to have a place to lay my head, if only for an hour and 40 minutes.

Jake awakened me at 7:17 a.m., showed me the shower, then gave me a cup of coffee and some toast smeared with delicious mayhaw preserves. Barely late for a retreat in Bay St. Louis, I felt that Officer Jesus and Wreckerman Jesus was out there on Interstate 12.

Arthritis Foundation plans telephone solicitation in April

If your phone rings in early April, a friendly volunteer of the Mississippi Chapter Arthritis Foundation may be calling for your assistance during the chapter's annual 'Dear Neighbor' campaign.

You can do your part during this time by volunteering to be the good neighbor on your block and helping to start the flow of charitable contributions which, in turn, will help the countless number of people with arthritis.

All proceeds from the 'Dear Neighbor' campaign in Bay St. Louis and Waveland will support the research, educational, community and direct patient assistance programs of the Mis-issippi Arthritis Foundation.

If you have questions about the campaign, call toll free: 1-800-844-8400 (inside Mississippi only).

Mrs. Kay Parker, appropriately dressed for gardening, gave horticulture tips on pruning, planting, perpetuating and percentages.

Mrs. Linda Eckert reported on the Pilgrimage to be held in Diamondhead on Wednesday, March 29.

Mrs. Grace Finley, nominating committee chairman, reported on the officers nominated for the next two years, and the slate was unanimously accepted as presented.

Mrs. Ann Campbell gave an update on conditions at the landfill now located on ground near Diamondhead and asked those present to be constantly aware of any garbage that might be illegally dumped there. She also spoke about a new organization, MEMO (Mississippi Environmental Management Organization), urging the garden club members to get involved in its goals.

Mrs. Ethel Evans, flower show chairman, spoke briefly on the flower show to be held March 28, again explaining that after being judged, entries in the Design Division which are to be staged in the home of Mrs. Nancy Schuback, will be taken to the homes on the Pilgrimage to be displayed with their ribbons.

The Horticulture and Special Exhibits Divisions will be staged in the Community Center and will remain in place to be viewed the following day by the Pilgrimage visitors.

Mrs. Alice Brameyer, schedule chairman, spoke on the flower show schedules just distributed to all members, and also announced that a design workshop would be held March 22 at the home of Mrs. Dixie Ogden.

Mrs. Marion Kollasch, advanced entries chairman, also spoke, urging members to see her after the meeting to sign up for entries in the Design Division. The program, given by Mrs. Arnold Kietzer, member of several rose societies and well-known rose grower of our coastal area, gave the club members many valuable pointers on the successful growing of roses. She urged the members to get a copy of Roses in Mississippi from the Home Extension Office.

March is National Nutrition Month

The 1989 National Nutrition Month theme is "A Lifetime Decision—Choose Good Nutrition." The objective of this year's theme is to encourage everyone to make nutritious food choices every day since these choices have a positive impact on health and well being now and for the rest of your life.

The U.S. Surgeon General's "Report on Nutrition and Health" specifically named nutrition as a major focus of national health priorities. Key recommendations from the report are:

Reduce consumption of fat, especially saturated fat, and cholesterol. Choose foods relatively low in these substances such as vegetables, fruits, whole-grain foods, fish, poultry, lean meats and low-fat dairy products. Use food preparation methods that add little or no fat.

Achieve and maintain a desirable body weight. Limit foods high in calories, fats and sugars, and minimize alcohol consumption. Increase energy expenditure through regular and sustained physical activity.

Increase consumption of whole grain foods and cereal products, vegetables (including dried peas and beans), and fruit.

Reduce intake of sodium by choosing foods low in sodium and limiting the amount of salt added in food preparation and at the table.

To reduce the risk for chronic disease, drink alcohol only in moderation (no more than two drinks a day), if at all. Avoid drinking any alcohol before driving, operating machinery, taking medication or engaging in any activity requiring judgment. Avoid drinking alcohol while pregnant.

Other Nutrition Issues

Community water systems should contain fluoride at the optimal levels for prevention of tooth decay. If such water is not available, use other appropriate sources of fluoride.

Those particularly vulnerable to dental cavities, especially children, should limit their consumption of foods high in sugars.

Adolescent girls and adult women should increase their consumption of foods high in calcium, including low-fat dairy products.

Children, adolescents and women of child bearing age should be sure to consume foods that are good sources of iron such as lean red meat, fish, certain beans, iron-enriched cereals and whole grain products.

For more information on how to personally tackle these concerns, contact your local Extension Service office by calling 467-5454 or coming by 725-A Dunbar Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

GOOD FOOD BUYS

Many uses of garlic told

Garlic, the most controversial addition to food, might be described as the 'atomic bomb of the vegetable world.' Garlic closely allied to the onion, is a member of the lily family and has a very distinguished background. It is a native of Western Asia and the Mediterranean and has been in cultivation for centuries.

The garlic root is a compound bulb consisting of several smaller sections, or cloves, which are enveloped by a common skin or membrane. It differs from the onion by being more powerful in its effects and more distinctive in its taste.

Always store garlic in a dry, cool, dark area, away from onions and potatoes.

Good in almost any dish, garlic is used mainly to flavor meats, vegetables, stews, soups, salads, dressings, tomato dishes, spaghetti sauces and in the preparation of pickles and sausages.

A medium-sized bulb contains about 74 percent water, 20 percent carbohydrates and small amounts of protein, fat, ash and fiber. There are 450 calories per pound or only a few per bulb.

There are several different types of garlic: Creole, Italian and Tahiti. The Creole generally has larger cloves while the Italian has the smallest cloves with the strongest flavor—and the cloves are pinkish in color. The Tahiti has large, individual cloves that are generally darker in color. Most experts claim this type is not a true garlic and call it 'elephant garlic.'

The strong pungent odor of garlic will penetrate all foods close to it unless you keep it in a closed jar. Ideal long storage would be to place the cloves of garlic in a jar with a lid loose and store in a dark, dry area at 30-40 degrees.

Since home storage facilities are not 30-40 degrees unless in the refrigerator when there's moisture, it's best to buy small amounts that you can use within several weeks.

Most of our garlic comes from California. Some is imported from Mexico, Italy, Spain and Peru. Some home gardeners grow their own. Bulbs planted in March are ready for harvest in July or August.

Supplies are fairly constant year round and heaviest during July, August and September.

Garlic has much folklore attached. In ancient Rome, laborers were made to eat garlic for strength, soldiers ate it for courage. The Egyptian work force building the Pyramids were obligated to eat garlic. In Greece, convicted criminals were made to take it as a soul cleansing agent.

Many claims of medicinal uses have been made. An English writer claims that in India, garlic has been a favorite for centuries for "improving the voice, intellect, complexion and promoting the union of fractured bones and helping to cure nearly all the ills that flesh is heir to."

Learn to use garlic to enhance foods. Cook a split clove of garlic in stew or soup for flavor. Remove before serving. Stick the garlic on a skewer (or tooth pick for easy removal).
